FINANCIAL & COMMERCIAL.

THURSDAY EVENING, Nov. 9, 1865. In local money matters there is no very decided change. There is an improvement in carrency balances, but it is so light that the market cannot be called essentially easier, and so far as borrowers are concerned in s as close as ever. Bunkers insist on refusing money to parties seeking new engagements, and they pursue this course ineriminately, knowing that to open th door in one case would be the first step certain stringency in a very short period. Exchange is in less demand, but the offer ngs are also light, and the market remains Gold in New York to-day was without of ided change, closing at 145%. The custom demand is large, averaging between $400,000 and $500,000 per day. The Treasury is underatood to be a seller to about the amounof its receipts. Government bonds are dull and weak, and a decline of 4@4 per cent. i eported to-day.

We have been furnished with some facts and figures in connection with the history of the Commercial National Bank of this elty, anterior to the period of conversion to the national system, which are interesting both as indicating the progress of the banking business in Cleveland and the materia growth of the city and surrounding country The Commercial Branch of the State Bunk of Ohio was organized and commenced business in November, 1845, with a capital of $175,000, and under the control of the tellowing officers: Directors-W. A. Otis, J. M. Woolsey, Jo athan Gillett, N. C. Winslow, T. P. Handy. President—W. A. Otia. Cashier—T. P. Handy.

Under the careful business manage of these gentlemen, the bank early took a prominent position among the financial in stitutions of the State, and increased its OUR MIDNIGHT MARKET REPORT. business and usefulness unthe city advanced in population and wealth, the public spirit [Special Dispatch to Western Associated Press.] of its founders keeping pace with this progress. At the time of its conversion the bank had completed a few months over nine-teen years, and had during that time, upon the above stated capital, paid to the stock-holders $634,537.50. The first dividend was made May 1, 1846, and was 2½ per cent., and the last dividend November 1, 1865, of 35 per cent. During the nineteen years but one dividend was passed, and one extra dividend was declared. The average of the dividend was declared. The average of the dividends was over 19 per cent per annum. The last board of officers was thus constituted:

Eirectors—W. A. Otis, A. Stone, Jr., W. J. Boardman, Dudley Baldwin, Levi Benedict, D. P. Eells.

President—W, A. Otis, Cashiers—Dan. P. Eells.

The conversion took place on the 28th of February last, when the bank became the Commercial National Bank, with a paid up capital of $600,000. The original capital of $600,000. The o of its founders keeping pace with this pro-
